Background of the Conference and Panel Discussion

With the rapid expansion of civil aviation, space exploration, satellite technologies, drones, and commercial space travel, incidents involving crimes, accidents, and catastrophic failures in air and space domains have significantly increased in complexity. Traditional forensic frameworks are often inadequate to address evidentiary, jurisdictional, technological, and legal challenges arising from such incidents.

"Sky Forensics" seeks to establish an academic platform to examine how forensic science, law, technology, and policy intersect in the investigation of aerial and space-related crimes and disasters. The conference aims to foster dialogue between legal scholars, forensic scientists, aviation experts, space law specialists, investigators, and policymakers.

The conference will also feature a panel discussion on 20th and 21st June 2026, which attendees will have the opportunity to attend and engage with.
