STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The existing allocation of seats of Parliamentary and Assembly Constituencies is based on the population figures published as per 1971 census and division of territorial constituencies is based on the population figures published as per 2001 census. The growth of population thereafter, across different constituencies in various parts of the country as well as within the same State along with migration of people from one place to other, especially from rural areas to urban areas, have resulted in varying density of population in electoral constituencies.

2. Articles 82 and 170 of the Constitution provide that the allocation of seats in the House of the People to the States and in the Legislative Assemblies, and the division of each State into territorial constituencies shall be readjusted in such manner and on the basis of such census, by such authority (the Delimitation Commission), as Parliament may by law determine.

3. Further, articles 239AA, 330A, 332A and 334A provide for, as nearly as may be, one-third reservation of seats for women in the House of the People and the Legislative Assemblies of the States, including within the seats reserved for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes. These articles make provisions for enhancing women's representation in the House of the People and the Legislative Assemblies effectively to enable greater participation of women in policy making and governance.

4. The purpose of the Bill is to constitute the Delimitation Commission to undertake the exercise of delimitation, inter alia, to provide reservation of seats for women in the House of the People and the Legislative Assemblies.

5. The provisions of the Bill seek to provide for the manner in which such exercise of delimitation will be undertaken by the Delimitation Commission, as may be constituted from time to time. The Delimitation Commission is empowered with the task of carrying out delimitation of Parliamentary and Assembly constituencies and to allocate seats to be reserved for women, including women belonging to the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes, in the House of the People and the Legislative Assemblies. The proposed delimitation will apply to every general election to the House of the People and the Legislative Assemblies held after the final orders of the Delimitation Commission are published and to every bye-election held thereafter.

The Bill seeks to achieve the above objectives.
